AMERICAN BOOK-MAKING .- At a recent entertainment given in honor of Professor Goldman Smith, a member of the book trade, Mr. G. P. Putnam prepared some statements and statisties for the occasion, which were of general innow about 4,000, of whom about four-fifths are progress of the demand for hooks within thirty rears, it may be mentioned that in 1834 the whole number of different books published in the United States was 449, of which 251 were original, and 198 were reprinted from foreign works. In 1855 the number was 2,162, of which 649 were reprints. In 1857 there were 2,443, neluding 746 reprints. In 1864 (to fl is date) there have been 1,690 works, of which 400 were reprints. All these exclusive of pamphlets and periodicals. Of the pamphlet literature of the ate political contest alone, one gentleman in New York has actually collected 3,000 different publications, and he estimates that the whole number published is not far from 5,000. Our pamphlet literature, in fact, unlike that of Engactivity of the popular mind. Thirty-five isted of reprints of English books. Now original American books average nearly our times the number we copy from abroad. The figures given above indicate the number of different works annually issued. When the aggregate number of each work issued is considered, the elactic character of our book-market and the extent of our reading circles are exhibited in a striking light. Even of the present ferent "histories" are In progress of pul lication; and of two or three of them from 75,000 to 150,-000 copies are actually in the hands of readersyet fliese works are in two or three large and 240 pages each, or 1,000,000 volumes of 480 pages each. Another house, in Philadelphia, sells books annually to the amount of $1,500, and 15,000. It is also Intere ting to know, as a proof that the war has not extinguished the book-trade, that the house last referred to which formerly suplied a large part of the southern booksellers, sold tooks in 1863 to the amount of over $200,000 more than in any Details and auggetions of this kind might be multiplied indefinitely. One other fact may be mentioned. While the Appletons have been

This movement, it is very possible, may be regarded as formidable only because it is novel. In such a light we are disposed to regard it, for we cannot see any great object it would accouptish without losing something equality valuable in the attempt to secure it. The similar movement made by Sherman last spring ended in nothing except the injury inflicted on the population as he passed along. If the people of the country are only true to themselves, it may be the means of securing as a great triamph. In this connection we are glad to notice that that gallant soldier and true patrlot, General Howell Coch, is in the Service lof tho State of Georgia, and we hope the means will be atforded him to show himself that great officer which he has every where heretolore lad the credit of being. [From the Richmond Dispate, h. Nov. 2t.]
There is not much to be gathered from the Georgia papers about the armies of Sherman or Hood. The assault upon Atlanta on the 8th seems to have been made under the mistake that the city was weakly defended. This mistake being set right by Inding a vigorous resistance, the assault was given up. Our troops attacked, under Gen. Iverson, about sunrise, and drave the enemy from a redoubt on the south side of the town, hat were in turn furced back. On the east side Gen. Lewis drove the enemy into their fortification: but as they showed a

64,403 27,489 "The poor ye have always with you," and the pressing calls of poverty and suffering come to us from every quarter. Immediate rellef is required at the Hospital for Refugees, on Broadway. There is terrible destitution among lts unhappy inmates, and there is hardly an article, which may be deemed superfinous in our city families, that will not be thankfully received, and put to some present use. Squalid mlscry, such as appears there, appeals to every charita ble instinct of our natures. Nor is the rauge of charity to be directed to this single location. The approaching winter will be very trying to the poor, and while we have many laudable associations, directed by energetic managers, to carry relief to the homes of want, it must always be recollected that private exertion can find out those who are deterred from making publie appeals for aid. A contemporary very justly remarks, that, if the people of any country were systematio in private charity, they would be a wealthy people, for judicious benevolence reacts on whole public interests. The Hebrews arc, as a elass, worthy of universal imitation in this respect. Among all the beggars that throng the streets of the world, who ever saw a Jew begging? And these is not because there are no poor among them. They are by no means tree from the ills of poverty. But they take care of their own poor, and are, as a class, comfortable in the world. It would add fan inestlmable amount to the sum of human happiness in every eity if every reader of this would at once set shout the work of relicving some suffering per son or family, or families. And this should not be by a spasmodic charity, which bectows a large dinner one day and leaves the beneficiar to starvation for a week. It should be by providing the poor with a certain dependence, as a basis on which to rest while seeking health or work. A loaf of bread per day guaranteed to a small family, and regularly given, costing but little to the pocket of the wealthy, would be like a large capital affording a regular income to a rich man. It would do more good than the value of three hundred loaves expended in dif-

Houses fon our Artisans.-London, New York, and other large cities have been of late years exerting themselves to improve the hygeine and increase the comforts of the working classes in their crowded localities. It unfortunately never occurs to those who possess phllanthropy as well as capital, that they should guard against the evils of densely crowded populations rather than exert themselves to remove them when they are found to exist. Preventive meas ures are neglected, but remedial efforts are always entered upon in such haste that they generally fail. The henefits which must result from the practical consideration of these subjects can be best secured by cities when they are developing themselves. Theu henevolent enterprises and pecuniary speculations can work together. When a city becomes densely populated before houses," and they always are abandoned, priu-But cities like Louisville, which is just We are now entering upon a system of street railroads, and shall soon have laterals which will ruu out the cross streets from the river, and room for huilding purposes. The land there is cheap, and, as we have suggested on previous occasions, companies should be formed to erect comfortable teuements not to exceed two himdred dollars a year rent, while neat cottages for smaller families should be grad d at from eight to twelve dollars a month. These would be in suhurhan villages, and the street railroads could be of great benefit in securing easy access. We have ontlets in every direction to lead to building spots as these railroads are extended. Who will take the initiative for the formation of a building company?

The National Intelligencer says: "They who undertake to oppose the Administration merely because it has not been elevated to power by their votes will soon surely flud that they do not 'nuderstand their epoch.' And they who give to the Administration an unquestioning support' will just as surely discover that their maxims of partisanship helong to an age that has passed in the history of the country. The issues of the times are too momentous and far reaching to admit of such narrow-miuded views in the one direction or in the other. It should be the aim of all to co-operate with the Administration n lts legitimate efforts for the preservation of the Government and the restoration of the Union, remembering that wisdom and virtue are the exclusive possession of no party, and that, therefore, if no party is to be implicitly trusted, so none is entitled to an oxclusive right of censorship, since the one case equally with the other implies the assumption of human infallibility."

Major-General Hancock is to have command of a new army corps, numbered the 1st to consist of not less than 20,000 infantry, for one year's service, to be organized in the Dis trict of Columbia during next month, and composed of persons who have already served honorahly not less than two years. Recruits will receive $300 bounty and transportation to Washington, and will have the privilege of retaining their arms at the expiration of an honorable service. This is just the kind of material that the brilliant Major-General Hancock will hring to a high state of efficiency and carry it to every field where glory can he won.

Each recruit who preserves his arms to the end of his term may retain them as his own upon being honorably di charged. So says the order from the Adjutant-General's office for raising General Hancock's new first army eorps. It might have added that if the arms were not preserved, the Government would find artificial limbs.

Some guns will soon be in position before the rebel capital which will throw shells of extraordinary inflammal le power from the hatterles of the 18th corps a distance of seven miles. When they open fire,

Very respectfully,

The generous offer of Miss Leo Hudson, and he prompt co-operation of the proprietors of the Louisville Theatre, are worthy of the highest commendation. They have done their duty. and it now remains for the public to do theirs. If proper exertions are used, the Saturday's matinee can be made to yield slx hundred dollars, and every eent less than that will be a re lection upon our citizens. Fill every nook and ranny of the house. On Monday evening last we found it almost impossible to obtain au enrance to see Miss Hudson in Mazeppa. Let just such another crowd be present on Saturday, and if she repeats the romantic Tartar tale we think the ladies and children alone will fill every seat in the anditorinm, to see her daring questrianism, and to be interested in the loves of Casimir and Olinski, and to sympathize with the triumphs of the young Prince of Tartary over the Poles, who were his oppressors. GROVER'S GRAND OPERA .- Ladies, on the approach of the Christmas holidays and the merry season of friendly rejoicings and domestic pleasures, Mr. C. M. Wilbur, agent of Grover's Graud Opera Troupe, made final arrangements yesterday with the managers of the Louisville Thea tre to commence an operatic season on uext Monday week. For several months we have been reading the Eastern papers, where Mr. Grover has made his musical track, and we have almost coveted the enjoyment which they so rapturously expressed. We are now, ladies, to arrange the opera toilets, and make such dis position of time and engagements as to allow no private parties to interfere with the opera season hetween the 12th of December and Christmas eve. Mr. Grover has a large company, a talented company, and a repertory o choice favorites and attractive novelties. The advertisement in our columns this morning is a mere announcement of business arrangements, but we shall hereafter have the uames of the artists and the list of the operas to be performed. We can assure our musical friends that there is a rich treat in store for them, and hat we shall have some operatic stars of the most brilliant lustre, who will give us a flood MUD-OUR STREETS .- Whenever it rains which it takes a notion to do quite often, our streets become rivers of thin mud. The water stands in pools as almost every corner, and the crossings are lost to view hencath the sea of slnsh. If you want to cross from one slde of the street to the other you must wade, regardless of polished boots, and are never certain whether you touch safe bottom or not. Maln street, in particular, just now, ls in an abominable state. Mud, mnd everywhere greets the eyesight, and as the street ears glide smoothly over the rails beneath the slulee, one is at a loss to determine whether they move on wheels, or sail on the bosom of some dark, narrow lake. As the omnibuses rattle down the street, splash, splash goes the mad, and, as the circling wheels disturb the placid bosom, the waves surge from pavement to pavement.

Everywhere throughout the city mud is king. It tlows in hiord rivers and snbmergea the crossings. It solls our boots and drabbles the ladies'skirts. It is splashed by carriages and waded with delight by mischievous urchins. In looking over an old magazine just after a luckless adventure upon the streets, we came across the following poem, appropriate of the mnddy season in Louisville, and were so pleased with it that we couldn't resist the temptation o transferring it to the columns of the Journal

Mind—mind—mind!
There is nothing around but mind;
From Union Square to the Bowing Green
It runs his ansaty flood!
It is piled in heaps at the rich men's doors,
To be splashed by the lorse's hoots,
And, where the poor men's dwellings stand.
His toseed as high as the rools.

Ruceks! It rolls, it ifows!
Like the borrolls river of Styx,
And he who strives to cross it o'er,
Will be na precious tx.
Over his hids rubber.
And up to the tees of his boots.
Till his Let are sonked, as d his legs appear
As oiled a a dirty brute's.

Oh, the streets—the innidey streets,
The Native American soil!
A sort of a remnent made of filth
Of the Corporation's toil!
It lies in the ratters thick and slab,
On the power enterlayer by layer,
The Aldermen cought to wade it recough,
Preceded by the Major.

Yesterday the streets were in a condition fi navigation by crafts of shallow draught The warm, bright sun did not shine without ef feet, and at night the thin mud had part'ally disappeared. If we should ever feel like committing suicide by drowning in the sainy season, we would would seek no further than the stagnant pool at the crossing near the postoffice. A plunge into its dark, unfathomable depths would either cure the disease or far nish a lonely grave far, far below in the regions of darkness. The light of day would never penetrate the water, and the sleep would be one of oblivious quiet. The mud is beginning to disappear, hut before to morrow night we may be deluged with another rain, and may flounder in another sea of slush There is a wide room for improvements in the drainage of Louisville, and the city fathers might render themselves immortal by voting for and insisting that the streets shall be scraped more frequently. Let us live on dry land or become navigators at jonce. Let there be no half-way principles. Let us have gondola- aud canals, or let us rejoice in terra firma and earriages.

MAJOR THEOPHYLUS STELLE. - Theopilus Steele, son-in-law of Dr. Breckinridge, who signs his name Major and C. S. A., has at last come to grief. He was captured a few days city yesterday. The Major has been in com mand of a gang of ontlaws, and, jndging from his ontfit, he has met with no little success in plandering the people of Kentucky. His rich gray suit, and the quantity of hrase buttons and gold lace he displays, do not speak of privations, or of a poor, down-trodden canse. The gandy plnmage of the Major is sadly ont of keeping with the poverty of the rehel government. He sports entirely too much gold lace to prove his honesty as a soldier. The Confederacy is not supplied with such articles as compose the Major's elegant outfit. Theophilus must either have stolen (politely confiscated) he articles from some of the stores ln Kencky, or have had them smnggled to him from Louisville or Cincinnati. If the latter theory is correct, then the greenbacks with which they were Jurehased; were obtained in one of the Major's raids. Of course, he "confiseated" the property in the name of the Confederate Goverument, but it was done after the fashion of a brigand and an outlaw, The Major will pard in us if we touch upon a sensitive point, but he should have been too high-toned and too sensitive in regard to his honor to consent to become the leader of guerilla band in Kentucky. We can respect a brave, honorable loc, but despise the coward who sknlks in the rear of o rarmies for the purpose of robbing defenceless citizens. The Major would like to be treated as a pri oner of war, but this honor has been denied him. Col. Fairleigh set t him to the Barracks Prison-the place where ontlaws and disorderly soldiers are confined—and, with a ball and chain attached to his leg. The ophnus does not stand much the vicinity of the camps at Jeffersonville, and chance of effecting Lis erc. 1e. He has fallen into bad hands, and must make the best of it If his quarters are more strong than comfort able, and his food more substantial than pulatable, i.e must not grumble, for ontlaws can ex-

THE OPPOSITION OF MARS.-To-day the oppo sitlon of Mars to the Sun will take place, and to astronomers will be quite an event in astrolo gleal history. This planet may now be seen, or any avening when the sky is clear, in the north west, soon after sunset. It has a most beautiful flery-red brilliancy and is rapidly approaching the zenith to come in opposition to the sun The last two oppositions of Mars ocentrad in ly, 1860, and on October 5, 1862. That which I take place to-day, will ha followed by an_ other on January 10, 1867. These oppositions or occultations, transpire atfintervals of ahout two years. As the orbit of Mars is quite eccentrle, or departs very considerably from a circle, its distance from the earth at its snecessive their first season as stars. New York, Nov. 29. The leading topic on Wall stre t to-day is the nd to the numerous rnmors in relation to the novements of Thomas and the situation The stock market opened strong, and closed liregular. Governments were more freely offered. Railroad shares not very active. The Stock Exchange had peace concluded with Georgia and Alabama, while the gold-room had Mashville captured by the robels. There was a sudden and sharp decline in gold this evening on the report that Hood had been repulsed at Columbia. Money is abundant, with only a moderate demand, and the tendency of rates is downward. There is more activity in exchange. There is a large atendance at the Petroleum Board, with a disposition to buy.

The greatest exertions are being made to discover the conspirators of the late attempt to ourn the city. The Hotel-keepers' Association of the $5,000 for the first conviction, $3,990 for the second, $2,000 for the third, and $1,000 for the last and for an additional unmber up to ten. The authorities will probably increase the reward. An attempt was made to burn the Insernational Hotel last night, but, like the others, was unsuccessful. A man was arrested vester-day at the Astor House under suspicious circumstances, and is now in prison.

The worthy abbot of Aberbrothok Had placed that hell on the Inchespe Rock On a buoy in the storm it floated and swilling And over the waves its warning rung. When the rock was hid by the surge's swell, The mariners beard the warrang hell. And then they knew the perilous rock, and libesed the abbot of Aberbrothok.

The sun in Heaven was shining gay, All things were joyful on that day; The . a-birds second as they wheeld round And there was joynnee in their sound. The bnoy of the Incheape bell was seen, A darker speek on the ocean green. A darker speek on the ocean green; Sir Ralph the rover walked his deck, And he fixed his eye on the darker speek.

He felt the cheering power of spring, It made him whistle, it made him sing; It is heart was mirithful to exec. 3. But the rover's mirth was wickedness. His eye was on the Incheape float; Quoth he, "My men put out the boat, And row me to the luchcape Rock, And I'll plague the abhot of Aberbrothok." The bont is lowered, the boatmen row, And to the Incheape Rock they go; Sir Ralph bent over from the boat, And he cut the be I from 1bo Incheape float.

Down sunk the bell with a garglin sound, The landbles rose and burst around; Quoth Sir Ralph, "The next who comes to a Won't bless the about of Aberbrothek," Sir Rahh the rover sail'd away, He scom'd lie seas for many a day; And now grown rich with plunder'd store He steers his comee for Scotland's shore. Sa thick n haze o'crepreads the sky They can stage the san on high;

These are but a few items in an immense busiss, commenced without capital only twenty-five years ago.

PROCESSES OF MANUFACTURE. In the large factories all the processes of man-ufacture are carried on. Steam power is used, and the lumber is worked from the rough boards. and widths required. A fongining and growing machine next prepares the narrow pieces to be put together so strongly that they will break at any other place sooner than at the joint. All these processes are performed in the same apartment, and, passed from land to hand, the rough board in an incredible short space is ready to be made into the boxes which form the foundation of the work. In the same room the cleats of hard touch wood are saved and cut into faucibeing softened by steam.

Being thus prepared, the next process is covering. Saratoga trunks are covered with split leather. Leather is split by the use of a kuife seventy-five or eighty inches in length, and five splits are often made from one skin. The leather used in covering trunks is not thicker than ordinary brown paper. After being pasted upon the trunks it is varnished, and sometimes colored. The iron bands and corners are then put ou, and fastened with rivets or tinned uails; the bottom is covered by sheet-iron, and the rollers attached to the corners. The handles, unde of strong stitched leather, are fastened to the ends. The trunk is then liued with paper, or muslin, according to its grade. Cleats have been previously placed across the ends for the trays to rest upon. The top, or lid, of the trunk is papered similarly. In the more expensive kinds, little drawers and compartments are fitted into the tops, all covered with muslin, and ornam ted with gilt or fancy papers. There is a deep bonnet tray, fitted with a stand, a large and wide tray or two, and a narrow one for parasol, &c.

branches of the business,

The common papers and board are of American manufactures. The faney papers and pictures are mostly imported, though we noticed littlegraphs from some of the New York firms. The steel goods are nearly all imported. All these wing sells, and the largest part of the threads used are of American manufacturer employs in his factory $15,000 worth of leather, $15,000 worth of leather, which re put into the best trunks, and which common the hest bargs. This and all the heavier work is done by men.

About one-fourth of the hands employed in the factories are women and beas. Many men the piece-work, and employ hop's to do such parts of this as a trev are allow. Many at the cereing in the factories are women and beas. Many men the jobs of piece-work, and employ hop's to do such parts of this as they are allow. Many at the cereing, and trees that no orderly march was possible, and emboss the sides with the hydraulic press. Women do all the lighter sewing, put the lainings in the bars, and make the trunk covers.

Most of the work is piece-work. Men make from six to ten dollars per week. They do a good deal of work in which women might equally well be employed. Women working on sewing-machines make from six to ten dollars per week, often working at home out of hours. On account of the large amount of inflammable material used, many of the factories do not light up. Others have gas, and work full time in the winter. The hands have constant work, employers finding something for them to do in the dull seasons.

Sewing slik js need for the ornamental stitching and sometimes in seams, linen thread of various qualities for the different kink so few-ing, and cotton thread in making the linings. All the thread is waxed, and the consumption of beeswax is more considerable than would be employed by one unacquainted with the business.

Provings to the advance in the heavier of the men. Hing pushed to the filling and the decivition with the hydraulic press. Firablew, leave the hings of the hing

Previous to the advance in prices manufacturers used only serviceable muslins and cambries for linings. But at present they are obliged to pay about four times as much for a very inferior articles they once paid for a good one. Having exhausted all that the market affords of goods at all suitable in fabric for this use, they are now obliged to resort to himsy paper muslins at thirty cents a yard, and cambries which have no substance but that derived from starch. "Now," said Fra Diavolo, "let us move down the rnad and meet this cavalry. They will ask you whn we are. You will answer, These are two brigands of the band of Fra Diavolo, whom we have taken and are conducting to Naples in order to obtain the premium."

"But suppose they should wish to take you themselves?"

"Then you will retire, protesting against the liquidate they do you. You, at least, will be safe."

The strategem was excellent. Fra Diavolo's men figured as militia of the district. The premium offered to brigands at Naples was a capital pretext for asking permission to pass on their way, and so gain the rear of the cavalry.
